2. Modus Operandi

The club has three aims: to promote an interest in Archeology generally and provide a forum for interested persons to discuss the aspects that interest them especially; to provide an opportunity for those who are interested in the techniques of excavation and analysis to learn those techniques, and to provide an opportunity for those who are interested in doing excavation work to do it on sites that will make a direct contribution to archeological knowledge of the local area. The Club has a committee on Techniques to study and report on techniques used in archeology. A committee on Bibliography reads books and other publications to get background information and to give book reports. A committee on Sites and Excavations is responsible for locating and directing the excavation of archeological sites. An excavation is being conducted at Seneca, Maryland at the present time. There is also a Finance Committee which is inactive because there has not been any need for money in the Club operations up to date.

3. Projected Plans

Our main plan is to continue to work as outlined above. Once an excavation is completed the results will be published by the Archeological Society of Maryland or some other appropriate scientific body.
